

An ocean of plastic

Luke the crab is a great collector, but it has become difficult for him to find new shells among the plastic accumulated on the beach and in the ocean. Together with his friends he decides to do something about it.

With this mini-story, children learn the importance of sharing and reuse.

Subjects

Technology
Art

Social skills introduced

Collaboration
Respect for the environment
Recycling and re-using

Further information

In kindergarten, teachers do a great job on collaboration, being a concept of extreme importance for avoiding conflicts. Children can also work together in educational activities aimed at teaching them respect for the environment and the importance of recycling. Learning to love nature from an early age leads to adopting sustainable life choices as adults.

Suggested age

4-5 years

Difficulty of game

★★★★☆

Learning objectives

- Fine motor skills
- Sequences

